ENVOYS OF NINE NATIONS DISCUSS CRISIS IN PIRACY

Drama of Mystery and Intrigue Is Unfolded at Nyon

BRITISH PRESENT AN ANNIHILATION PLAN

Endeavor Be Made To Avoid Possibility of General Upheaval

By JOSEPH SHARKEY
GENEVA, Sept. 10.—(P)—Soviet Russia's foreign commissar warned a nine nation Mediterranean conference today that his country "must and will take its own measures" against submarine pirates in that sea.

This was interpreted as a threat of reprisals against Italy.

In an impassioned address not long after the nine powers met to adopt a collective means of stopping attacks on neutral vessels, Maxim Litvinoff, of the Soviet Union, cried: "The Soviet government cannot allow anyone to destroy its state property."

He linked these words with a thinly veiled accusation of Italy as a "private government."

Everyone, he said, knew whom he was talking about.

Then Litvinoff brought into the open his warning that Russia will act, alone if necessary, to stop the pirate submarines.

She already has accused Italy directly of sinking two of her ships.

The Soviet foreign commissar said Russia was ready to take part in collective measures against the pirates; that she was confident the measures would be "effective and immediate."

But he served notice: "The Soviet Union cannot remain inactive in the hope that its legitimate rights may, perhaps, be defended by other states or by an international organization!"

Into Secret Session
After he had spoken, Anthony Eden, the British foreign secretary, arose to express regret that Italy and Germany were not represented at the conference.

But, he added, this should not stop the conference in its "duty."

Then the conference went into secret session.

After the secret session Litvinoff told the Associated Press that "agreement was reached on several points and another meeting will be held tomorrow."

Litvinoff started off this way: "Such a disgraceful phenomenon as piracy on the high seas—organized not in ages past by individual criminals, gangs or mutineers, but by the government of a European state—was bound to come to the world's attention."

Then he said this piracy had come from "submarines whose names have been painted over, whose national flag was concealed, whose crews were disguised uniforms!"

He shouted:

"Only those states can avoid participation in this conference which consider themselves guaranteed against piracy—either because they organize it themselves as an instrument of national policy or because of their extreme intimacy with the pirates."

"Only such states are interested in torpedoing this conference."

Italy and her Nazi ally, Germany, have boycotted the conference.

French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos, opening a momentous conference at Nyon, near here, told the delegates assembled to seek a means of Mediterranean security:

"It is impossible to permit the present situation of insecurity to continue without the gravest of perils."

In the same breath he said "we regret" that Italy and Germany, "because of reasons affecting them," considered it necessary to boycott the conference.

Delbos spoke with the full authority of French and British governments, in complete agreement on a formula for settling the pirate submarine that have brought chaos to the Mediterranean and fear to the world.

Demand Rapid Action
He demanded "rapid action" to end the piracy peril.

A few minutes earlier Delbos had been elected unanimously president of the conference. All the twelve powers invited were represented except Italy, Germany and Albania.

Italy and Germany declined the invitation yesterday, refusing to sit at the conference table with Soviet Russia, which had charged that the "pirate" submarines in the Mediterranean sealanes actually were Italian.

WAGE INCREASES TO 'FRISCO WORKERS

By The Associated Press.
SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 10.—A new working agreement, providing for five-cent hourly wage increases for the 4,200 members of the Frisco railroad's metal crafts and car department employees association, is expected to be signed here this afternoon.

Hugh D. Warren, general chairman of the association, and H. L. Worman, vice president and chief operating officer of the railroad, both expressed belief the contract would be approved at a meeting of association directors with Worman.

NAZI ORATORS IN PROGRESS CLAIM UNDER HITLER

Ten Foreign Diplomats Guests of Reichsfuehrer at Congress

By The Associated Press.
NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 10.—Adolf Hitler told a formation of Nazified policemen at the party congress today why they could not carry clubs any more.

A policeman, he said, should have such authority that people expect to get shot.

"But," he added, "what is intolerable is to belabor people on the back with clubs as though they belonged to barbaric tribes."

NURNBERG, Germany, Sept. 10.—Nazi congress orators shifted their fire today from attacks on democracy to accounts of progress under the swastika—with diplomats from democratic countries as guests.

Yesterday Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels assailed democracy in a fiery speech.

Today Max Amann, president of the Reich press chamber extolled "the power of our national socialist press" and Richard Walther Darré, minister of agriculture, recounted rising farm production.

Ten foreign diplomats arrived this morning as guests of Reichsfuehrer Hitler for two days at the congress.

Among them was Prentiss B. Gilbert, charge d'affaires at the United States embassy in Berlin. His brief visit was sanctioned by the state department, although Ambassador William E. Dodd, now in America, objected.

Darré declared that in other countries the price of bread had increased while in Germany it had been held stable. In the United States, he added, bread prices had risen 17 per cent since 1933.

The first official appearance of the visiting diplomats was at a luncheon adjacent to the torture chamber in the old castle overlooking Nurnberg.

Earlier, when the foreign diplomats arrived and filed out of their pullman this morning to go to breakfast 17 planes roared over them, forming a huge swastika in the sky.

Besides Gilbert, those on the train were the British and Chinese ambassadors and the ministers from Greece, Denmark, Sweden, Egypt, Holland, Czechoslovakia and Belgium. The French ambassador, Andre Francois-Poncet came directly from Paris and the Swiss envoy, Paul Dinichert, from Bern.

Women Rush Guard Lines
Enthusiastic Nazi women stormed Luitpold Hall today to see Bachelor Hitler and hear Gertrude Scholtzklint, Nazi women's leader, proclaim that marriage and motherhood are "the highest achievements in a woman's life."

The crowds of women proved stronger than Hitler's black-shirted "S. S." guards. Several thousand cheering women outside rushed double lines of the husky guards to reach the hall's wide entrances when Der Fuehrer got there.

The women's leader admitted the usefulness of women in medicine, law and business, but accented marriage and motherhood as the "highest achievements."

Hitler commanded the cheering throng to "be yourselves and have more children."

His women hearers laughed when he added it is "impossible" for some foreigners to understand why Nazis have a women's organization.

"They say to me that German women are trampled upon," he added.

The crowd laughed again.

NO GREAT ALARM IN SHANGHAI OVER CHOLERA

SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—(P)—Health authorities said tonight Shanghai's cholera outbreak was such, but above the normal late summer infection but gave no cause for alarm.

Killed By Automobile
COLLINSVILLE, Ill., Sept. 10.—(P)—William Oglesby, a groom at Fairmount Park race track, was killed by an automobile last night on U. S. highway 40, about half a mile from the track. Park attaches said Oglesby was about 43 years old and from Clifton, Texas.

JAPAN'S FORCES IN ONSLAUGHT ON ALL THE FRONTS

Increase Danger to Americans In The Spread of Hostilities

REFUGEES FROM HANKOW TO CANTON

About 2,000 Civilians of United States Remain In Shanghai

By JAMES A. MILLS
SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—Japan's streamlined war machine struck at stubborn Chinese defenders on all fronts today, placing Americans and other foreigners in serious danger from the spreading hostilities.

The new assault found China's armies holding virtually the same positions as when Shanghai warfare started Aug. 13.

United States marines guarding the northern boundary of the international settlement were endangered when a Japanese shell fragment plunged into the heart of the barracks.

Shrapnel sprayed the international settlement, causing a number of civilian casualties.

High explosives rained down on the Whangpoo, Shanghai's outlet to the mighty Yangtze. One projectile narrowly missed a British destroyer.

Another whizzed over the French flagship anchored across from Shanghai at Pootung.

Japan carried the warfare to South China ports with a bombardment of Swatow. Americans there took refuge on the U. S. gunboat Asheville.

The first of 1,200 American war refugees left Hankow for Canton with a prayer that their train would not be bombed.

Move To Block Japanese
On the northern front, powerful Chinese Communist armies of Gen. Mao Tse-tung were reported taking the field in Shensi and Shansi provinces to block Japanese advances.

Japanese rushed reinforcements, both to the northern and central China war zones.

At Shanghai, troops from 30 Japanese transports as well as heavy artillery batteries were ferried ashore. Bitter engagements were fought on all sectors of the Shanghai front.

Despite increasing danger, many Americans insisted on remaining in China. It was estimated about 7,000 non-military United States citizens have not been evacuated.

More than 2,000 American civilians, mostly businessmen and their families, stayed in Shanghai with apparently no thought of abandoning their fortunes.

The U. S. S. Asheville's commander, Allen G. Quinn, ordered Americans at Swatow to board his ship as soon as it became apparent Japanese intended to bombard the city.

After the raid, the British consul asked Commander Quinn to transmit a request to Hongkong for a British destroyer.

Twenty Chinese civilians were killed and municipal and military headquarters were damaged in the bombardment.

DIES OF RAGE ON 'SAUCERING' COFFEE

By The Associated Press.
SPOKANE, Wash., Sept. 10.—William Falhaber, 68-year-old cafe proprietor, died of rage because his Greek cook insisted on drinking coffee from his saucer, Deputy Coroner T. C. Barnhart said today.

The cook—listed on police records only as Paul because Detective Sergeant Lee Markwood couldn't understand his last name—said he had been chased from the cafe by Falhaber who had a shotgun in his hands.

Officers found Falhaber dead behind the counter, still gripping the gun.

Paul said Falhaber was "awful mad."

Barnhart said Falhaber's rage caused heart failure.

FARMER ENDS LIFE IN A HOTEL AT CHARLESTON

By The Associated Press.
CHARLESTON, Mo., Sept. 10.—Tom Mendenhall, 30, a farmer, asked a policeman to come to his room in a local hotel at 11 o'clock last night because, he explained, he was ill and might need a doctor.

When the officer went there he found Mendenhall near death from poison. He had also dropped a lighted cigarette on his bed and it was on fire. The man died two hours later.

Coroner F. S. Vernon, who said it was a case of suicide, said Mendenhall left a letter but it contained no explanation for his deed.

TWO AND A HALF BILLION BUSHELS IN CORN YIELD

Estimate Total Wheat Crop Will Reach 885,000,000 Bushels

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—The agriculture department announced today this year's corn crop, as indicated by September 1 conditions, would be 2,549,281,000 bushels and the total wheat crop, 885,959,000 bushels.

Indications a month ago pointed to 2,658,748,000 bushels of corn and 890,419,000 bushels of wheat. Last year corn production was 1,529,327,000 bushels. The total wheat crop was 626,461,000 bushels.

This year's winter wheat crop totals 688,145,000 bushels, as compared with 519,013,000 last year and 623,220,000, the 1928-32 average.

All spring wheat production is indicated as 197,805,000 bushels, compared with 202,274,000 a month ago, 107,448,000 last year and 241,312,000, the five-year average.

Durum wheat indications are for 27,288,000 bushels, compared with 28,264,000 a month ago, 8,175,000 last year and 53,687,000, the five-year average.

The indicated oats crop is 1,136,167,000 bushels, compared with 1,130,628,000 a month ago, 789,100,000 last year, and 1,215,102,000, the five-year average.

The condition on Sept. 1 and indicated production of certain crops, by important producing states, showed:

Corn:
Missouri, condition 78 per cent of a normal, and indicated production, 124,308,000 bushels.

STOCKS IN SHARP DROP IN SELLING

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—The stock market swung forcefully downward today, and while a half-hearted rally stemmed selling for a while, leaders finished $1 to $6 or more down, at or near their lows for the day.

Brokers failed to explain the surprising turn, coming as it did after yesterday's sustained rally. First described as a "secondary reaction" from the upturn, it assumed proportions which some traders asserted took it from that category.

Opening a little higher, on reduced volume, the market ran into trouble in the second hour and heavy selling appeared in an accelerated pace. Disheartening to brokers was the fact volume increased on the downswing and dried up on the attempts to rally. The ticker was often as much as five minutes behind floor transactions.

PIGEON HOLE AN AIR ATTACK PROTEST

LONDON, Sept. 10.—Great Britain's protest to Japan over an aerial machinegun attack on Sir Hugh Montgomery Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to China, was piteously held today for the more urgent European situation.

The government made clear, however, that its demands for satisfaction still are "unfinished business."

SERVICE STATION WAS BURGLARIZED

A thief, who entered the Standard service filling station at Fourth street and Osage avenue sometime Thursday night or early Friday morning, took between $17 and $18 it was reported to the police Friday morning.

The burglar apparently knew the layout and workings of the station since he entered through an unlocked window in the back part of the building and found the keys which opened the door to the room where the money was kept. The money was in a box inside a small room which was locked. After entering the back window the burglar took the keys from a drawer and opened the door to the room with the money.

After removing the cash from the box the thief again locked the door to the room and placed the keys back in the drawer. He made his escape through the same window through which he entered. An attempt was made in March to burglarize the station when someone broke the same window used by the burglar this time. No money was taken the first time.

T. E. Farris, 165 South Prospect avenue, who operates the station, noticed that the money was missing when he opened the station at 7 o'clock, and called police officers who made an investigation. He said that the box contained seven one dollar bills and over ten dollars in small change.

Chief John O'Brien and Officers Emmett O'Brien and Herman Fischer, who investigated the robbery, took finger prints left on the window.

CHARGES SPLIT IN LABOR RANKS NOT DUE TO CRAFTS

William Green Attributes It To Ambition For Control

By The Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 10.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, charged today that the split in labor's ranks was not over craft or industrial unions but "was caused by the ambition of one man to control the labor movement of the country and set himself up as a dictator here."

The cause of industrial unionism is being pressed by John L. Lewis, chairman of the committee for industrial organization. Green did not mention the target of his attack by name.

Addressing the National Association of Letter Carriers, A. A. F. of L. affiliate, Green said his organization had adapted itself to embrace both craft and industrial forms but the opposition insisted on going its own way.

Green shouted that "we'll accept the challenge" of the opposition and "The American Federation of Labor will never surrender to a minority force."

"I place responsibility for the hatred dividing the ranks of labor at the industrial organization. We have asked that they return but they have refused. The method of organization was not the issue."

Says Communists Employed.
Green charged that 250 Communists are employed as organizers for the C. I. O.

He said the American correspondent of the Russian publication, Pravda, sent word "to his superiors, Stalin and his associates, 'I'm reporting to you that the Communists are energetically supporting the C. I. O., that the Communist party is helping to prepare direct mass strikes.'"

"Read the Daily Worker or New Masses or any other of the Communist publications," Green suggested, "and search it from first to last and see if you can find one word of praise for the American Federation of Labor. On the other hand, article after article praises the C. I. O."

Green disavowed "with all the power at my command" any responsibility for the division in labor's ranks. "On the contrary, I've endeavored to appeal to common sense and to calm judgment to heal the breach. But every request for a conference has been denied and every appeal has been spurned."

"The opposition's attitude is that it is determined to go on at any cost with its program dividing the ranks of labor. If that's the answer, we'll accept the challenge."

MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL IN FEES CASE

A motion for a new trial has been filed in circuit court in the case of Judge Jacob E. Smith, probate judge of Pettis county, by John Harned and Frank W. Hayes, attorneys for Pettis county, following the decision of Judge Dimmitt Hoffman given in the case on September 6.

Recently an audit of Pettis county officials by auditors from the office of Forrest Smith, state auditor, they informed Judge Smith he was indebted to the county of Pettis in the amount of $911.42 on fees after which Judge Smith filed a petition in circuit court for a decision from Judge Hoffman, circuit judge.

Judge Smith filed for the court ruling in the June term of court and Judge Hoffman took the case under advisement until the opening of the September term.

The ruling by Judge Hoffman favored Judge Smith and also exonerated A. M. Hagan, former judge of the probate court from paying to the county approximately $1,300 on fees collected.

The three county judges, H. F. Fricke, Am. C. Lettich and Malcolm C. Scott, this morning ordered Mr. Harned and Mr. Hayes to prepare to appeal the case to the supreme court following the hearing on the motion for a new trial.

CIGAR STORE INDIANS PART OF ART EXHIBIT

DETROIT, Sept. 10.—(P)—Three cigar store Indians are part of a new exhibit in the art institute here, John D. Morse, museum instructor, announced today.

"We are beginning to recognize that these wooden Indians occupy a definite place in the history of sculpture," Morse said, explaining that Michigan was once a leading state in wooden Indian carving.

REPORTED NAZI ACTIVITIES ARE UNDER SCRUTINY

Disclosed Justice Department Started Inquiry Six Weeks Ago

GOING THOROUGHLY INTO THE MATTER

Dispatches From Berlin Says It Caused Some Irritation There

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—A disclosure that the justice department already is investigating reported Nazi activities in the United States followed fresh demands today for a congressional inquiry.

J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the federal bureau of investigation, said at Portland, Ore., that Attorney General Cummings ordered an investigation six weeks ago and it was begun at once.

"We expect to make an extended report on the Nazi matter, but I can't say when we will be ready to give this report to the attorney general," Hoover said. "It will be several weeks because we are going into this matter very thoroughly."

Two senators joined in proposing a congressional inquiry. Senator Burke (D-Nebr.) said he would introduce a resolution proposing one immediately upon reconvening congress. Senator Borah (R-Ida.) expressed the opinion an investigation was warranted.

A copyright article in the Chicago Daily Times of yesterday saying American Nazis were planning to seize control of the government "when the Communists' revolution starts" stirred the senators to comment.

The paper said its information was obtained by three reporters and investigators who worked for many months to learn secrets of the Amerikadeutscher Volksbund (German-American Bund) and the Deutscher Volksbund.

The statements quickly were denied by representatives of the organizations.

August Klapprott, head of an Amerikadeutscher Volksbund camp in Sussex county, N. J., described it as a joke, "nothing but a big lie, and a lot of hokey."

Dr. Emil L. Baer, German consul in Chicago, said the idea anyone was attempting to form a Nazi army in America was "ridiculous."

Scout Idea In Berlin

Dispatches from Berlin said the report was received there with mixed amusement and irritation, although ignored by German newspapers. A foreign office spokesman was represented as scouting the idea.

A congressional investigation also was suggested by John J. Crim, legislative chairman of the army and navy union.

The Times said the Bund maintained at least 15 camps and estimated the membership of the Amerikadeutscher Volksbund at 20,000, scattered through 17 states and the District of Columbia.

An investigation of un-American and subversive activities was debated several times in the last congress session. Its chief advocate, Rep. Dickstein (D-N.Y.), charged repeatedly that foreign spies were attempting to set up a Fascist state in America and that 350,000 Nazi storm troopers had organized in this country. He once suggested the United States quiet diplomatic relations with Germany.

SHOWERS FALL IN PARTS OF STATE

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Additional thunderstorms were possible in Missouri today from clouds which brought rain in light to moderately heavy amounts to about half the state.

St. Louis had 1.02 inches early today for the maximum amount reported by the weather bureau. Other rain leaders included: Poplar Bluff, .92 of an inch; Arcadia, .74; Rolla, .43, and Macon, .44. The showers missed most of the north and northwest sections.

The clouds were expected to move out in time to give the state fair weather tonight.

Streams on Rampage
CASSVILLE, Mo., Sept. 10.—The U. S. forest service gauge here showed 9.48 inches of rain in the last 48 hours.

Piers of the White River bridge under construction 17 miles south-east of here were in danger as swollen streams went on a rampage.

UNITED SUPPORT BE GIVEN CLARK

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—Campaign plans for U. S. Senator Bennett Champ Clark are already under way here with the St. Louisian "virtually certain of united organization support," the Globe-Democrat said today.

A committee headed by two Democratic leaders, Gale F. Johnston and E. E. Purcell, is receiving contributions, conferring with St. Louis and prominent outstate Democrats and making plans for the primary, the paper stated.

T. J. Pendergast, Jackson county Democratic leader, has announced in Kansas City he would support Senator Clark for reelection.

Support By Mayor.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—(P)—Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann, head of the dominant Democratic faction in St. Louis, announced today he would support United States Senator Bennett Champ Clark for reelection next year. He called Clark a "wonderful senator."

T. J. Pendergast, head of the Kansas City Democratic organization, yesterday gave his endorsement to Clark. Dickmann's declaration meant, therefore, the senator would have the assistance of the state's two most powerful party leaders.

FOUL PLAY TO MISSING CHILD IS FEARED

OAK GROVE, Ark., Sept. 10.—(P)—Fear of foul play accelerated four men today in their search for four-year-old Florence Jackson, red-haired tot who wandered off into dense woodlands of the Ozark hill country north of here Monday.

Some searchers thought the child might have been seized by a degenerate.

Several square miles were gone over yesterday without finding any but the slightest clues to her whereabouts.

IMAGINATION

A Boston psychologist, Dr. F. W. Walls, has been studying two groups of 100 men each, one of which made $5,000 a year right through the depression while the other didn't make more than $35 a week. He finds only one point of difference between these groups. In four different tests of intelligence and personality they came out just about even. Where they differed was in "creative ability" or "imagination."

The investigator discovered this basic difference by asking them unusual questions, such as what should be done in case of an unexpected emergency. For example, "What would you do if you knew that extensive oil fields were about to be discovered in Denmark?" And "Suppose the Atlantic sea coast were going to sink 50 feet in the next year—what ought to be done about it?"

The $5,000-a-year men nearly always made the better answers. They were more fertile and reasonable in discussing the possibilities and prospects. And they could put their thoughts vividly and convincingly, in few words, whereas the low-salaried men were less resourceful, more hesitant, and either more wordy in expressing themselves or unable to think of anything to say.

It's just a new statement of an old truth. The imagination, the "image-making" faculty, is the most valuable quality for a poet, teacher, an engineer or a business man.

11,000,000 AMERICANS INJURED

The National Safety Council reports that in the year 1936 there were 11,000 accidental deaths in the United States and 10,730,000 injuries. The automobile caused 37,800 of the deaths and 1,305,000 of the injuries. Home accidents caused 38,500 deaths and 5,620,000 disabling injuries. On the streets and in public places were 20,000 accidental deaths and 2,400,000 injuries. Approximately 1,200 accidents occur every hour of the day.

These statistics appear to indicate that Americans care little for life and limb or for property loss. The economic cost of these accidents in 1936 is estimated at more than $3,700,000 while available records say that insurance claim payments were less than $500,000,000, about a seventh of the loss. Life and limb, of course, should be considered regardless of cost. Life and limb should not be held cheap. An automobile may be replaced, but the dead cannot be restored to life.

Eleven million casualties constitute an indictment of the American people for carelessness and recklessness. In spite of all the safety propaganda broadcast by the National Safety Council, by the American railroads, by the American newspapers, by other American agencies, the careless and the reckless appear to pay no attention to warnings. The driver who dashes over a railroad grade crossing is not to be cured by the spoken or the printed word.

Year by year the American accident record has been worse. Slaughter on the streets and highways of the nation is shocking enough in all conscience, but accidents in homes greatly exceed the automobile accidents in 1936. Sedalia and the rest of the cities of the country have their share of the careless and reckless albeit in this town and state there has been a wealth of propaganda in promotion of safety on street and highway, in homes, in public places, in industrial establishments. The railroad record is exceptional.

TRAINING SKILLED WORKERS

From Hannibal Courier-Post.

Training skilled workers has become an important part of the program of industry. At least four out of five companies have adopted some form of development for industrial work of employees to meet present and future needs.

A survey of the National Industrial Conference Board made recently of 473 companies gives some details of methods. Generally training on the job is the plan followed. There are only 8.5 per cent of the concerns studied using the so-called "vestibule schools," which provide for separate schooling under special instructions in special plants or sections. Systematic apprentice training is the method most generally followed.

There is great variation in time required, ranging from one week to five years. Four years is quite general in many skilled lines.

The survey shows the importance attached to skilled labor in the present industrial set up and an approach to the problem by all lines of industry that reveals realization of the need for maintenance of the supply of such workers.

No matter which side wins in Spain the country they will take over will be distinctly second hand—and look it.

A French woman, to revenge herself on a pig which bit her, set fire to its sty and burned down the entire village. Reads just like a bit of Oriental diplomacy.

WASHINGTON — British and American conversations regarding the Far East have gone much farther than has leaked out in the newspapers. Representatives of the two governments actually have discussed what course they would follow in case of an "incident" tending to drag one or both countries into the melee.

Details regarding these conversations have been ascertained by one of the Merry-Go-Rounders, recently in London, and are corroborated here.

Judging by these conversations, the Roosevelt Administration is much more anxious to play a decisive role in blocking Japan than appears on the surface.

Probably it will be denied, but United States officials have emphasized to the British that if Japan conquers China she may build up an empire with which no white nation can reckon.

British officials have concurred in this, and have gone one step farther by pointing out that such an empire would mean complete ruin to the United States cotton belt. Given a stable government, China could produce tremendous quantities of cotton, and Japanese mills could sell the finished product at a price that would wipe out the British textile industry.

Strengthen Democracies
United States officials also have taken the view that the democracies of the world—the United States, Great Britain and France—need to take a firmer stand. To date, they have yielded before every sabre-rattling move by European dictators.

A stiff and united front against Japan, it has been emphasized, would show that Democracy was no weak institution and would be a healthy example for Mussolini and Hitler. Thus an object lesson in the Far East would help to maintain peace in Europe.

The British, while applauding these ideas, are very much inclined to say: "After you, Alphonse!"

They claim that their fleet is tied up in the Mediterranean and the Atlantic, that their interests are nearer home. In effect, they want the United States to show strength against Japan while they applaud from the sidelines.

British Punishment
Actually, the British have taken far more punishment from the Japanese than the public realizes. Six of their ships already have been searched, and two of them (Yangtze river boats) seized as prizes of war.

Nothing has been published about this, because the British have not announced it to the press. However, they have reported it to American officials, who have taken the stand that if the British did not want it known it was not the business of the United States to announce it.

The British also have been under tremendous pressure from Australia, New Zealand, and even Canada, to take a stronger stand against Japan. So far, however, they have tried to push the United States forward.

Cordell Hull's View
United States officials appear more willing to take the Japanese bit in their teeth than the general public would suspect. Cordell Hull, fundamentally a man of peace, believes that a firm stand should be taken against Japan, not necessarily for war but against her aggression. He even goes so far as to believe that if it is necessary to fight Japan some day, it may be better now than later.

American naval strategists are completely confident—provided they have some degree of British support. They are urging the British to send at least six battleships from the Atlantic and Mediterranean to Far Eastern waters.

Economic Blockade
American and British naval strategists have worked out an economic blockade of Japan they believe would subdue her in short order. It is based upon the fact that Japan is a group of islands and, therefore, must import everything by sea. Italy, on the other hand, had land neighbors, so the League of Nations had no means of enforcing its boycott.

But by stationing fleets at the Singapore Naval Base and at the Panama Canal, British and American naval strategists believe they could blockade Japan effectively. Most of her supplies must be imported by these two routes. The only other source is China, now her enemy.

This blockade is proposed as punitive action against an aggressor nation, without going to war with Japan. But of course, blockades usually lead to war.

Shanghai Strategy
One thing to be remembered about the Shanghai battle is that General Chiang Kalshek wants to fight there. It is his one great hope of winning the war—namely, that of drawing the western powers into the mess.

Strategically, Shanghai is not important. It would be much better for Chiang to withdraw to the lakes and marshes which form a chain north toward Peking. But he is throwing the cream of his army into Shanghai. Reason is that although he has man power, Chiang lacks supplies. For every machine gun he loses, he must import another from abroad. Therefore, his aim is to hold out until the Japanese affront the western powers sufficiently to bring them in.

Japanese Rivarly
From the Japanese viewpoint also, it would be better not to fight at Shanghai. The approach is difficult and not important strategically, once captured.

However, here is where human nature enters. The Japanese navy, shamed by their poor showing during the Shanghai attack in 1932, resolved to redeem itself. Its officers initiated the Shanghai battle. Now Japan cannot withdraw without tremendous loss of face.

Chiefly to be feared in the Chinese war is the Japanese seizure of an American merchant vessel. United States naval commanders will convey all these vessels, have instructions to permit no seizures.

The Japanese Government is anxious to avoid any such incident. However, Japanese naval commanders, while at sea, are virtually a law unto themselves. They can be headstrong and flighty.

When the arms-laden vessels now heading toward Shanghai, actually reach Chinese waters, anything may happen.

DEFECTS THAT MAR THE SIGHT

Yesterday we pointed out that good vision doesn't always mean healthy eyes; that a child may be able to focus and read a test chart perfectly and yet be putting his eyes on a strain. The three kinds of eyestrain are far-sightedness and astigmatism.

We considered far-sightedness yesterday and pointed out that the far-sighted child often goes for a long time before his condition is suspected because he can always, by straining his focusing muscles, bring the image in his retina.

The near-sighted child is not able to do this, because in his case the eyeball is too long and the image falls in front of the retina. Straining on the lens simply pulls it further forward. In the far-sighted child the eyeball is short, and with the lens at rest the image falls behind the retina, but he can always pull it onto the retina by thickening his lens with his ciliary muscle.

Since the near-sighted child can not achieve clear vision in this way, his defect is readily detected from his actions. His only method of accommodation is to bring an object closer to his eyes. He can do this with a book, but not with a factory chimney a mile away.

Near-sighted eyes are inherently weaker, and their supporting structures allow a certain amount of stretching, which just makes matters worse unless correction is made with glasses. A full correction will give the child normal vision for distance, and the focusing muscle will be forced to act in a normal manner.

Drugs Necessary

In order to prescribe such glasses the ciliary muscle must be put at rest with medicines such as atropine or homatropine. Since so many of these examinations are carried out by optometrists, I am in favor of legislation allowing them to employ these special drugs. It is very silly to allow a man to use half the tools of his trade and not the other and equally necessary half.

Astigmatism is lack of complete regularity of the surface of the optical tract. This is a difficult ideal. There are very few eyes that have not some astigmatism. The word means "not a point," which signifies that the images on the retina are not as sharp in outline as they should be.

Unless the astigmatism is extreme this results in little visual embarrassment. There is a great deal of fussy nonsense practiced in putting eyeglasses on children for astigmatism who really don't need them at all. In fact, would be better off without them, as it affects their personalities, making them priggish, or neurotic, or self-conscious as the case may be. If suggestion is used any child can drum up a headache to blame on astigmatism. Extreme cases, of course, do have symptoms and need correction.

Poems That Live

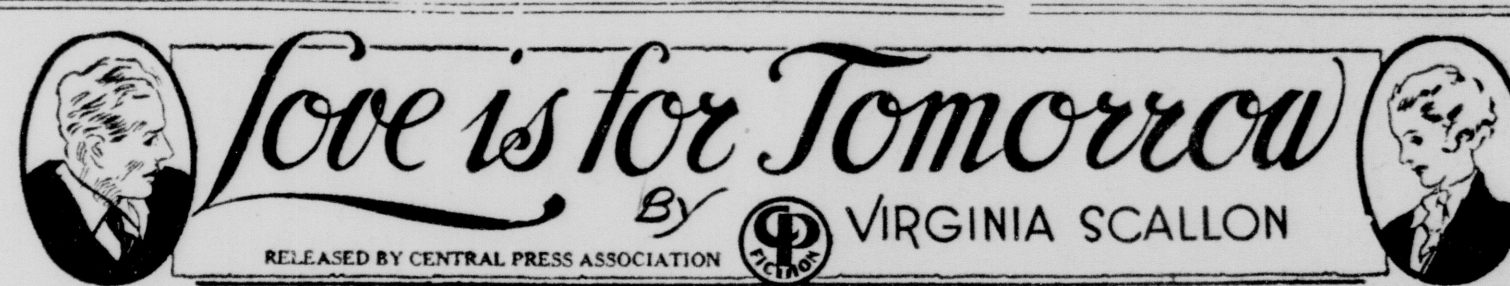

REMEMBER

Remember me when I am gone away,
Gone far away into the silent land;
When you can no more hold me by the hand,
Nor I half turn to go yet turning stay.
Remember me when no more day by day
You tell me of our future that you planned:
Only remember me; you understand.

It will be late to counsel then or pray.
Yet if you should forget me for a while
And afterwards remember, do not grieve:

For if the darkness and corruption leave
A vestige of the thoughts that once I had,
Better by far you should forget and smile

Than that you should remember and be sad.
—Christina Georgina Rossetti

MARCIA dressed slowly that night for her date with Gary and with none of the pleasure she usually felt in slipping into flattering evening clothes. Almost mechanically she took her bath, set a wave in her gleaming copper curls. With her robe of gold-toned bath towel, she looked like a tiny child as she studied her face seriously in the mirror. The deep blue eyes were troubled, her creamy skin paler than usual.

Marcia was feeling the importance of that date, for she realized the month's grace Gary had given her expired that night. How like him to plan a special celebration, to mark his acceptance or his final defeat! Marcia, full of the realization that she must finally thrust him out of her life, faced the ordeal with real dread. She thought it would have been far more appropriate if Gary had planned to take her driving in the warm evening, when in the darkness she could try to soften the blow of her refusal. But in the face of his ardent plea for a dinner at the impressive Trocadero, she had given in.

"Marcia, I particularly want you to come with me to the Trocadero tonight," he had said when she was working on the final illustration for the book. "I've reserved a table, and I want to celebrate the completion of our job." He would not tell her in words that he also hoped to celebrate another and more important event.

She wriggled into the turquoise blue dinner gown that swirled around her silver-shod feet, and pinned Gary's extravagant corsage at her bosom. As she dressed, she wondered why Sandy had called her again, today of all times. She hadn't seen Ellen or any of her friends who might tell her how the Paula affair was progressing. Almost fearfully she picked up the paper these days hoping she wouldn't find the girl's picture printed as a "charming bride of the season."

Gary arrived just as she finished, and stared in frank admiration at the charming girl before him. Marcia caught the spirit of almost reverence, and laughed with embarrassment.

"You can touch me, Gary. I won't break!" she insisted gaily, and took his arm to make a grand exit from the dim apartment. She was hastily trying to get him away from a possible tote-a-tete, when his evening would be ruined before it began. "If only I can postpone my proposal until after we leave the Trocadero," she thought desperately. Once they reached the cafe, on beautiful Sunset boulevard and overlooking all the lights of Hollywood, she felt more secure.

Gary was lavish with his ordering, including "champagne cocktail for two." Marcia tried to do justice to the dinner, but she was nervously ill-at-ease. On the other hand, Gary seemed in his most jovial mood as he toasted her for the fine work she had completed on his new book.

"To the future!" he proposed, lifting his glass to salute hers.

"To the future," she said obediently, and wondered what it held for both of them.

Unable to restrain himself, Gary abruptly leaned over the tiny table. "I can't wait any longer, dear," he said almost breathlessly. "Can you tell me now that you've changed your mind in the last month? Can you tell me you'll change this business association to a lifetime partnership? Ah, my dear—can you?"

Marcia put her hand on his coat sleeve. "Let's wait until we go home. I have so much to say," she told him.

"So much to say," he said swiftly, "then you do love me! Oh, my dearest!"

The girl shook her head violently when he mistook her meaning, then her eyes clouded with tears as she saw his sudden reaction.

"Oh, Gary, I didn't want to tell you here, before all these people. It's just no use, my dear. I can't, I just can't. You mean more to me than any friend I have, but I don't seem to have any more emotion left. Believe me, I'm desperately sorry."

"To the future," he proposed.

"And I was so certain you'd changed," he told her in a daze. "I thought these last weeks meant as much to you as they did to me. You were so understanding."

Marcia could have told him that pity made her gentle with him, not love. Love was not such a soft emotion; it swept people off their feet, to the wildest happiness or to bitter sadness. She had experienced both, and the sorrow she experienced on losing Sandy had drained her of all other feeling.

She looked at Gary fondly, and wondered if things would have been different if she had met him before she'd known Sandy. He was so sincere, so in love with her. Almost reluctantly she had refused to avail herself of his protecting love.

She turned to him eagerly, "Gary, don't let this spoil your party. We're still the best of friends—unless you won't have me for a pal any more. If you feel it must be that way, why let's drink to the end of a perfectly glorious partnership!"

Gary looked unseeingly at her. "Friendships like ours just can't end, Marcia. If I've expected too much, it's my own fault. Let's drink to—well, let's drink, anyway!" And with a wavering smile Marcia lifted her glass to meet his.

As the evening wore on Marcia breathed a tiny sigh of relief. She might have known Gary would take her verdict like the gentleman he was. The lights dimmed during a spectacular performance, and when she could see clearly once more she looked appraisingly at her companion. She started, realizing he must have had a good many drinks during the course of the evening. Even as she looked, he raised another glass in salute: "Let's drown our sorrows," he said thickly. "Here's to the calm, cool emotion of friendship!"

Quickly, she took his arm. "No more now, Gary, let's go home. She began to gather her wraps, but her escort shook his head violently. "The evening is just a pup. We're going to stay till the last dog is hung. Might as well enjoy it; it's our last party!"

Marcia was amazed that he would let go of himself so completely, until she realized how terribly he had counted on this evening. He had been so sure of her, so sure of his own ability to win her, that he had brought her to his favorite spot to hear her say she loved him. The disappointment had been a crushing one, and he found the first brave toast had called for another and another to bolster his sinking spirits.

Suddenly, Marcia saw him slump to the table, propping himself up on his elbow. Knowing his fastidious nature of any kind of a scene, she looked wildly about for help. Almost in answer to her prayer, she saw Sandy come into the dining room. Wildly, she beckoned to him.

Sandy had just finished "one last drink" with Mike, who had landed some work for McDonald and insisted on treating his friend. When he saw Marcia, all the blood rushed to his head and he pushed his way quickly through the crowded tables. Coming closer he saw to his amazement that the man was Gary, and that he was irrevocably drunk. His temper rose to the boiling point.

"Is this your special celebration?" he said disgustfully to Marcia.

"It's Gary. He's had some bad news; can you help me get him out of here?"

"Oh, sure. I can get him out of here all right. Get up!" He took the limp form of Gary in a powerful grasp.

"Sandy, stop!" Marcia cried in alarm. "Let's take him out quietly between us. Won't you?"

"Get up, I say!" Sandy shook Garrett impatiently, but the man in his grasp was beyond helping himself. With a look of utter disgust, Sandy pushed the man from him.

"Look out!" Marcia screamed shrilly, as she saw Gary tottering weakly toward the steps. The force of Sandy's shove sent him crashing against a pillar. Still on his feet, he swayed dizzily, then fell down the six stairs to a lower floor. Marcia dashed quickly to his aid and saw him lying still on the marble floor. Blood flowed from a gash on his forehead, and he was scarcely breathing.

A woman called, "Police!" Suddenly the cafe was in a turmoil, with waiters carrying the inert form of Garrett to a couch, others clutching Sandy roughly, Mike trying vainly to explain the accident, and Marcia watching it all helplessly.

"I hope this little fracas won't hurt your fine career," Sandy said bitterly between tightly drawn lips. "And I hope I haven't hurt you. Marcia dashed quickly to his aid and saw him lying still on the marble floor. Blood flowed from a gash on his forehead, and he was scarcely breathing.

"Not so fast, there!" called a policeman who was bending over Garrett. "We'd better hold you until we see whether this fellow is going to live—or die."

MASON-DIXON LINE SIGHTED BY FLIERS

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—Often discussed as an imaginary line, but actually surveyed by two Englishmen, the Mason-Dixon line has been located from the air by pilots flying between Chicago and Washington, D. C.

W. H. Proctor, veteran American airlines pilot said last night he first noticed the line about a year ago as he flew near Cumberland, Md. Subsequent investigation disclosed its identity. It appears, Proctor said, as a miniature highway, cutting through the heavily wooded land.

Government Is Not Looking For Ladies To Go To Alaska It Says

WASHINGTON, Sept. 10. — The United States government wants two things understood which a lot of folks apparently have misunderstood. — It is not looking for ladies to go to Alaska.

2—It has no virgin island houses to rent to mainlanders for $5.50 a month.

The situation—and if you'd see the letters you'd realize there is one—developed in the wake of two springly bulletins from the interior department.

The first announced there are two-and-a-half times as many white men as women in the nation's vast northern territory.

The second explained three low-cost housing projects had been opened on the Virgin Islands with rents ranging from $2 to $4.40 a month.

Ink had hardly dried on the items before reaction began.

"I am ready to leave for Alaska at once," wrote a New Jersey woman, "please send fare and the route."

"We are three girls," read another letter, "how do you think a tea room would go?"

The Virgin island bulletin stirred up such correspondence as: "Enclosed find slip. Kindly write me about it as I would like a little home. P. S.—Is it $5.50 a month and how do you reach it?"

"And from Brooklyn: 'I am very much interested. Can you tell me about hotel and restaurant possibilities or give me some work as I am a cook. P. S.—If there is no employment in the hotels, what kind work is there besides?'"

Facts are—there are still two-and-a-half times as many white men as women in Alaska and, if you established residence and live for two years on the islands you can rent a house if there are any to rent.

But don't write the government. Its office workers are tired of corresponding on the subjects.

man, "please send fare and the route."

Envoys Of Nine Nations Discuss Crisis In Piracy

gation shortly before the conference opened.

The draft of the protocol which the British and the French want the other powers to adopt already has been submitted, unofficially, to Soviet Russia and several other nations.

Swift approval of the plan—perhaps by tonight—was forecast confidently.

It was learned authoritatively that it embraces an actual mutual assistance agreement among the nine powers for the crushing of piracy.

Delbos, speaking of the suggestion from Italy and Germany that the piracy matters be referred in toto to the London non-intervention committee of 27 nations, said this could not be done "because we must act quickly."

The conference at Nyon, he said, must swiftly "adopt by common accord, for the period in which danger exists, special measures to assure the free circulation of merchantmen in the Mediterranean."

Ready To Deal
ROME, Sept. 10.—(P)—A Fascist official, told tonight of Soviet Commissioner Litvinoff's veiled threat of Russian sea reprisals against further "Italian" submarine attacks, said grimly:

"That would be an aggression with which we would know how to deal."

Editor's Note: Meeting in Nyon, Switzerland, today are representatives of nine nations—Italy and Germany notably absent—to discuss the piracy situation of the Mediterranean.

Delbos, Mackenzie, former war correspondent and for many years a star reporter of the Associated Press tells of the drama leading to the present acute situation.

BY DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—Only the imagination of a Robert Louis Stevenson could conceive such a drama of mystery and intrigue as surrounds today's conclave of nations in the ancient little town of Nyon, Switzerland, to consider the piracy of the phantom submarine or submarines of the Mediterranean.

The events leading up to this conference have been such as would have precipitated war a dozen times over, a few brief years ago. The air surrounding the conclave is suffocating.

Powerful Russia's overlord, Stalin (the steel man), infuriated over the sinking of Soviet ships by the ghostly submersible, has given an identity to a craft which other nations have been viewing deliberately through the small end of a telescope. He says it's Italian, and no "maybes."

Violent Words Bandied
Stalin has called the world's number one dictator out of his name and labeled him Captain Kidd. The Muscovite chieftain has pinned the skull and crossbones of the Jolly Roger to Mussolini's coat.

Violent words have been bandied back and forth. From Moscow have come unofficial intimations of war. Il Duce, having in about so many words told Stalin to go to the hot place, has angrily declined to participate in the Nyon conference.

Reichsfuehrer Hitler, bitter foe of Communism, has joined Mussolini, once his disliked rival but now well-beloved brother, and has placed the power of rearmament squarely at the back of Italy.

Thus again we have the two major dictators in one group, with the forces of democracy in another.

Britain and France, who sponsored the conference in the hope of evolving a scheme to slay the sea-serpent without disturbing peace, have more or less been left holding the bag, as usual. The refusal of Mussolini and Hitler to play in Stalin's back yard, and the Muscovite's insistence that Mussolini be spanked as the bad boy of Europe, have made things exceedingly uncomfortable for the Anglo-French combination.

Britain has been pretty mad herself about interference with British shipping by the submarine, but England long has been pursuing the Wilsonian tenets of "watchful waiting," and being "too proud to fight."

Reluctance To Swap Blows
There have been several reasons for her reluctance to swap blows. First, it is generally conceded that she is a true lover of peace and hates the idea of war. Second, she let her war machine deteriorate so badly that she lost some of her confidence. Third, Captain Anthony Eden, the comparatively youthful "best dressed man" who is foreign minister, has most decided leaning towards pacifism.

Eden is no weakling, and the fact that he stands up so staunchly for his ideals proves it, but it would take a lot to force him to agree to armed conflict again. He served through the World War and knows first-hand what such conflagrations are.

However, if nobody else will take the matter in hand, the Anglo-French team hopes to do something decisive about the submarine that is ruffling the blue waters which wash the shores of so many countries. A few depth-bombs dropped by British and French warships in the vicinity of the submersible might do a lot towards solving the problem.

Russia's insistence that the conference label Italy as the pirate creates an uncomfortable position for the other powers. They don't want to label anybody, and Russia is the only country thus far to identify the marauder.

True, it is probable that the nationality of the submarine is known by every navy of Europe, including the Swiss which consists of something like one outboard motorboat armed with a pistol, on Lake Geneva. But apparently everybody excepting the Russians would prefer to scupper the submarine beneath the concealing waves, so to avoid formal recognition.

Great Britain Aroused
Despite reluctance to stir up trouble, it is certain that Britain in particular will not continue to stand for piracy on a sea which she has always regarded as her own private gold-fish pond. Further, her vast rearmament program has been progressing apace and she is rapidly getting into a position which no other European nation would care to challenge.

It is an astounding thing that a pirate submarine should be operating in the Mediterranean. It also is an exceedingly nasty business for shipping. Nobody who has not been through a submarine campaign can realize what fearsome things these terrors of the deep can be.

Submarine depredations are nothing new to the Mediterranean, for the bulk of many a torpedoed ship lies rotting there. The writer spent uncomfortable weeks on these waters at the beginning of 1917 when the Germans started their intensified submarine campaign.

Allied ships were going down at all points of the compass. They sank thirteen near my steamer.

One thing is certain—that every delegate in today's conference will have in mind the dark and desperate days of the World War which produced the horrible submarine campaign. The avoidance of another general upheaval will be foremost in their thoughts.

Plan of Annihilation
BY JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
GENEVA, Sept. 10.—France and Great Britain laid before a nine-nation conference today a dramatic plan for automatic annihilation of any undersea craft lurking on the Mediterranean high sea route.

Experts of the two powers completed this formula, which embraces also the use of dirigibles, airplanes and warcraft to safeguard merchant shipping, while the League of Nations council, in a brief session, formally placed on its agenda a Spanish government charge that Italy is to blame for piratical attacks on ships in the inland sea.

The council session preceded the meeting of the nine nations at Nyon, near here—a momentous session designed to find security for neutral ships in the Mediterranean, with or without the help of Italy and Germany, both absent today.

Yvon Delbos, the French foreign minister, was chosen to open the Nyon session and get it quickly down to practical work. A swift technical study, perhaps led by Britain's first sea lord of the admiralty, Baron Chatfield, was in order.

The preliminary plan of the British and French experts would divide the Mediterranean into territorial waters and high seas.

Riparian states would retain full control of their territorial waters and do their own policing there.

But along the great Mediterranean sea route, all craft found under water would be regarded automatically as piratical, to be open to immediate attack by warships of a 9-power international fleet.

Men of War Bulwarks
British and French men of war would be the bulwarks of this anti-pirate armada. Planes and dirigibles would watch over merchant shipping.

Submarines on the surface, flying their own national colors, would not be molested.

Included in the plan would be the provisions for humanization of submarine warfare decided upon by most important powers in 1936—including Italy and Germany.

There would be warship convoys of the type employed in the World War to protect neutral vessels. British and French warships would form these convoys at ports like Southampton and Harve.

Once drawn up, the Nyon protocol will be submitted to Italy and Germany, either directly or through the London nonintervention committee of 27 states.

Its completion is looked for by Monday.

The League council itself met privately under the chairmanship of the premier of government Spain, Dr. Juan Negrin. Negrin, however, announced he would abandon the chair when his nation's charges against Italy are heard.

The members decided to appoint a subcommittee to study the British plan for partitioning Palestine between the Jews and the Arabs, then adjourned until Tuesday.

Simultaneously, a Chinese spokesman told the Associated Press that his nation will press for definite League action against Japanese "aggression."

San Francisco's chief of police, William J. Quinn, said he would investigate charges a Nazi movement is flourishing in that city.

"In the coming years all the unity and all the efforts will be required to put a stop to the former crippling by the Americanization of their young" declares the Bund yearbook, reprinted from the German magazine Deutsche Arbeit, in referring to children of Germans who have emigrated to America."

"American boys and girls sing hymns to Der Fuehrer and to the Vaterland they never have seen," the Times said. "Their youthful feet are stepped in a march of racial and religious hatred."

The newspaper said organization leaders insisted the youth were the lifeline of our movement" and "must carry on our fight against Judaism, world-Bolshevism and Communism."

City, in agreeing to surrender its contract in purchasing the bonds privately July 20, providing the securities were resold to the St. Louis syndicate at a premium of $150,500.

The injunction suit was filed by the Kansas City firm Aug. 16 after the fund board asked for new bids after the private sale was criticized.

The board then went to the supreme court to halt the injunction proceedings.

Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown and State Auditor Forrest Smith's office said they expected to start to complete preparation of the bonds as soon as the securities were returned here by Adjutant General Lewis M. Means.

The secretary of state must attest to Governor Lloyd C. Stark's signature and imprint the bonds with the state's great seal, while the auditor's office must certify to the restoration of the securities.

The bonds—the last block of the $10,000,000 issue for rehabilitating the state's eleemosynary and penal institutions—are to be delivered to the St. Louis syndicate by a representative of the state treasurer's department by next Tuesday.

LESS BARBARIOUS WARFARE PROPOSED
ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 10.—Making warfare less barbarous with acetyl choline, a drug capable of causing instant fainting of enemy soldiers, was suggested as a possibility at the American Chemical Society here today.

Acetyl choline is one of the most active chemicals known. The most minute quantity, when injected into the blood stream, causes a remarkable lowering of blood pressure. Faint is the result.

There are afterwards no ill effects. Where used in combat, acetyl choline would stop virtually all deaths, serious wounds and most of the pain.

Yet it would be an effective weapon for its appears possible to use it so that enemies would drop inert, unconscious and open to capture in large number.

The circumstances under which it might be used for a more humane type of war were explained in an interview today by Dr. R. R. Renshaw of New York university, with D. Green and M. Ziff.

CHARGE VIOLATING OF GAMBLING LAWS
By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 10.—The June term grand jury, in a final report to Circuit Judge J. Wesley McAfee, declared today state laws which prohibit bookmaking and the operation of gambling slot machines "are violated to a considerable extent in the City of St. Louis."

The report urged that a future grand jury undertake a campaign of investigation and prosecution against the "higher-up who are the source of law violations," adding that evidence obtained against them, and subsequent convictions, "would strike at the core of the gambling situation."

Financial returns to the gambling fraternity from slot machines and "smoke shops" are so great, and their connection with undesirable social forces has been so often proved," the grand jury asserted, "that to allow gambling to continue as it has is to permit a growth in the community that might seriously poison it."

TREND TO THIRD TERM TALK IS CRYSTALLIZING

Two Groups Are Forming
Draft The President and
Stop The President

By MILO THOMPSON
WASHINGTON, Sept. 10.—Those who, in this center of political discussion, already are arguing the possibility and desirability of a third term for President Roosevelt have frequent recourse to the political classics.

They go, especially, to Jefferson, the first president to emphasize Washington's two-term precedent.

It was Jefferson who expressed the hope a limitation on the eligibility of a president for re-election might be written some day into the constitution. And it was Jefferson who, when he was urged to run a third time for the nation's highest executive office, said:

"That I should lay down my charge at the proper period is as much a duty as to have borne it faithfully. If some termination to the service of the chief magistrate be not fixed by the constitution, or supplied by practice, his office, nominally for four years, will, in fact, become for life, and history shows how easily that degenerates into an inheritance."

The inevitable trend of third term talk is toward crystallization of persons into one of two loose groups: A draft-the-president group and a stop-the-president group.

Imperfect as it is, crystallization at present, those who are putting out draft-Roosevelt feelers thus early are saying there can be no danger of a Franklin Roosevelt dynasty and a third term would mean only a chance for a benevolent president to finish a good job. They also are saying this president, because he is "different" and because the situation in which the nation finds itself is "extraordinary," could and should surmount the third term obstacle.

Recall Grant Expression
They are recalling that U. S. Grant, writing to the chairman of a Pennsylvania state Republican convention which had expressed "unalterable opposition" to a third term, said he was not seeking one but added the time might come when it would be unfortunate to make a change of presidents at the end of eight years. Perhaps, they say, that time will have come in 1940.

Their opponents in argument—those who are putting out stop-Roosevelt feelers thus early—have another bit of Jeffersoniana to answer that. Jefferson said:

"If the principle of rotation be a sound one, as I conscientiously believe it to be with respect to this office, no pretext should ever be permitted to dispense with it, because there never will be a time when real difficulties do not exist and furnish a pretext for dispensation."

The no-third-termers assert the words proved prophetic in that every president thereafter urged to stand for a third term was urged on the basis of some unusual situation then existing. And each set of circumstances, in its turn, seemed such a set as never had occurred before. They express doubt that the machinery of the Roosevelt administration is so complex only a Roosevelt can direct it and doubt that the problems of today are any bigger in the eyes of the people of today than were the problems of yesterday to yesterday's citizens.

The fear which appears to grip the draft-Roosevelt persuaders is the fear that, with differences possible in the party leadership and with labor lately expressing half-hearted support, whatever the compelling circumstances of the moment, even Roosevelt might not be able to dare successfully the third term taboo.

And the fear which grips the stop-Roosevelt persuaders is that it would be just like a president who is no mean strategist and who seems to enjoy dramatic taboos, to tackle this handicap, perhaps, succeed.

Influence of Church and Home

Creamed Comments On S.S. Lesson

A Nation Needs Religious Homes. Deuteronomy 6:4, 5; 11:18-25 for Sunday, September 12.

Deuteronomy means the second version of the law which through Moses had been previously given the Israelites. Now before entering the promised land, Moses reiterates important precepts.

V. 4. "Hear, O Israel: Jehovah our God is one God." As there is not room in our thought for two supreme principles, so there is not room for more than one God.

V. 5. "And thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." God is love and only when His love rules does God reign. God's love pierces the emotional life that He may be loved with the heart. When the whole nature of man responds to God's love, may it be said that God is loved with "all thy soul." "With all our might" calls for the full surrender and action of the will. In this verse is found the key to the Christian religion.

V. 18. "Therefore shall ye lay up these words in your heart and in your soul; and ye shall bind them for a sign upon your hand, and they shall be for frontlets between your eyes." God's word is worked into the heart by daily reading, by committing scriptures to memory, by applying God's word to the practical affairs of life, by a constant attempt to think God's thoughts and discover the mind of Christ.

V. 19. "And ye shall teach them to your children, talking of them, when thou sittest in the house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." Parents have the grave responsibility of starting their children right with God when their lives are plastic and easily molded. This is done by constant prayer, instruction and precept, and setting before them a worthy example.

V. 20. "And thou shalt write them upon the doorposts of thy house, and upon thy gates." Religion is not to be held secretly but must be well expressed not for a show but to honor God.

V. 21. "That your days may be multiplied, and the days of your children, in the land which Jehovah gave unto your fathers to give them, as the days of Heaven above the earth." In all people there is a heart hunger for a home life, a home land, where religious freedom may be exercised, which was well demonstrated in our early history. Civilization rises on the God-consciousness of its people.

V. 22, 23. For if ye shall diligently keep all the commandments which I command you, to do it, to love Jehovah your God, to walk in all His ways and to cleave unto them, then will Jehovah drive out all these nations before you." The way of progress is by strict obedience to the will of God. There may be much to overcome and the way may seem an impossible one, but there is strength in the Lord for every obstacle. There is no place for pessimism when walking with God. In the history of the world, progressive steps are made. The ruthless and barbaric have been allowed but with the raising of standards, higher laws are evolved. The driving out of a land of natives of that land is being abhorred. We now disdain ourselves for the way we treated the Indians. There is a feeling that Italy was wrong in her recent treatment of Ethiopia.

V. 24. "Every place whereon the sole of your foot shall tread, shall be yours." They had to put their feet down upon it and make it theirs by this footprint title. This is the way in which we come into our possessions. No one can buy his education, he must work for it. While some inherit their homes, the ideal way is to work for them and then they will be best appreciated.

V. 25. "There shall no man be able to stand before you." When a man walks with God and at the same time works with God, always being at His best, there is nothing that will defeat him. When this program becomes the program of nations, all wars will cease as all will be walking as one big family with God and for God.

WIT AND WISDOM

A fellow has to be a contortionist to get by these days. First he has to keep his back to the wall and his ear to the ground. Then he must put his shoulder to the wheel, his nose to the grindstone, keep a level head and have both feet on the ground.—Selected.

Lesson Prayer: "We would love God so supremely that the natural expressions of our lives in the home, on the street, in business, and in society would be naturally religious."

BOOK REVIEW

How The Church Began, by Chalmers. The Morehouse Publishing Company, is a series of studies for the use of clergy and church school teachers relating to the history of the church from its beginnings, with special emphasis on the missionary labors of St. Paul. The lessons are planned for the ordinary school year, from the middle of September to the beginning of June.

World Religious News

After meeting at the Cheney State Teachers' College, near Philadelphia for the eighth annual "Eastern Institute of International Relations," a large group of alert and responsive college students have now scattered in many "Peace Teams" to different corners of the United States, under the auspices of the peace section of the American Friends Service Committee and the Congressional Council for Social Action. These teams of students are made up of units of four; and four such teams have come into the south, four into New England, ten into Ohio, New York and Pennsylvania. They will serve under the youth section of the Emergency Peace Campaign.

The state of Georgia, through its Board of Education, will purchase 500,000 Bibles for the school children of Georgia as a means of inculcating religious principles and off-setting communistic tendencies. The motion for the purchase of the Bibles was made by Gov. Rivers and was supported unanimously by the ten-man Board of Education. A Bible will be given to every child in the state.

George Pepperdine College is the name of a new institution to be opened at Los Angeles, Calif., on September 20, according to a new story. Mr. Pepperdine is a loyal member of the Church of Christ and is the founder of the well known Western Auto Supply Company of stores. He has provided a million dollar endowment for a four-year college to inculcate "Ideals of Christian living and fundamental faith." Dr. Batsell Baxter of David Lipscomb College in Tennessee is slated to be the president.

What is said to be Great Britain's oldest Sabbath school in continuous operation has just celebrated its sesquicentennial in its original building in Plymouth. It was founded by a resident pastor, Dr. Robert Hawker, in 1787, as a center of religious instruction. Now in addition to its religious services it serves as a center for the training of girls in cooking, laundering and child welfare work, and of boys in carpentering and woodwork.

Stabilizing National Life

An editorial in Colliers Weekly says: "Our churches have been strong and enduring because they appealed to the best instincts and ideals of a free people. In this country, certainly, religion has been the teacher of morality. Our every advance in morality has been expressed and upheld by the churches. Back of the churches. The history of social reform in this country is a record of the activities of men and women who were awakened by religious experience. The strength and growth of the churches are a great stabilizing influence in our national life."

Why not accept the invitation and come to church next Sunday?

The Better Way

Success

Grenville Kleiser says: "Your degree of success is not measured by what you say and promise, but by what you attempt and achieve. The world awards its prizes not for excuses and explanations, but for performances and results. Intelligent men read you like an open book, and accurately appraise the kind and quality of your success. The creative, planning, aspiring power within the realm of your mind, and industry, is sufficient to place an industry, is sufficient to place you in the front rank of men. Life is rich with opportunities and possibilities for the ambitious and persevering. Successful men in all departments of life have been characteristically hard workers. There is a place of distinction for you, if you emulate the example of great men."

A Nation Needs Religious Homes

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture—Deuteronomy 6:1-9; 11:18-25.

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

The book of Deuteronomy is made up of Moses' farewell addresses to Israel. He urged them: "Thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might."

This religion of the true God they were to "teach diligently to their children," to talk over with them when they were at home or whether they were away from home.

To those who would give religion its proper place in their home life God promised rich blessings: "That your days may be multiplied and the days of your children."

In such a home our Lord was reared. "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." (GOLDEN TEXT—Proverbs 22:6)

FINANCIAL NEWS

SHARP DECLINE TO STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Sept. 10.—(AP)—Heavy selling waves hit the stock market today, driving numerous leaders down 1 to 6 points and some much more. Traders threw holdings overboard at even a faster rate than in last Tuesday's break and at the peak of the collapse near the final hour the ticker tape fell 15 minutes before bottoming out for more than a year were widely distributed.

The pace slowed a bit after the late rush and extreme declines were reduced before the finish. Analysts could find no outstanding news development to account for the slide. They at first attributed it to a "secondary reaction" which usually follows a downfall such as occurred the early part of the week. The retreat, though, turned out to be much greater than "secondary."

Both the Mediterranean and Far Eastern situations were watched closely, but brokers thought developments in these sectors were not such as to revive the market's war fright. There was no appreciable change in the murky business picture. Transfers approximated 2,100,000 shares.

FARM BUREAU VOTES TWO RESOLUTIONS

CHICAGO, Sept. 10.—(P)—Directors of the American Farm Bureau Federation adopted two resolutions today demanding stabilization of all basic crop prices and a special session of congress early in November to enact surplus control legislation.

In advocating a special session of congress, the directors said they were convinced "that any farm commodity price stabilizing bill to be effective in 1938 must be passed at an early date so that its provisions may be made known to producers well in advance of the 1938 planting dates."

CHINESE CLING TO THEIR MAIN LINES

Barrier on Yangtze Is Making Evacuation More Difficult

By MORRIS J. HARRIS
SHANGHAI, Sept. 10.—(Friday)—United States citizens in nearly all the principal seaports of China today were urged to evacuate in the face of increasing perils from Japan's air and naval attacks along all China's 2,500-mile coast line.

Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson at Nanking ordered the American consulate at Swatow, in Kwangtung province, closed and all Americans there evacuated. Previously Johnson had authorized closing of the American consulates at Amoy and Foochow, formerly thriving ports of Fukien province.

Several hundred Americans at Tientsin, chief seaport of Shantung province, were urged to get out as soon as possible. United States officials indicated they feared that Tientsin would be a field of hostilities. The Japanese army and navy, it was believed, would attempt a landing there for an expedition to strike at Tsinanfu, the provincial capital.

Capture of Tsinanfu would cut the Tientsin-Pukow railway, main line of communications between Nanking and North China.

American lives were gravely endangered Thursday at Shanghai, Amoy and Swatow. Japanese warplanes and warships subjected Amoy to a terrific two-hour bombardment, causing American residents to seek shelter in dugouts. The American naval vessel Asheville was caught in the bombardment; several air bombs fell close to her and her crew took shelter below decks to avoid a hail of shrapnel.

SHANGHAI, Sept. 9 — (AP)—Three one pounder shells crashed directly in front of the American consulate-general this afternoon, seriously injuring three Chinese civilians and one British Sikh policeman.

The "pom-pom" shells were fired from Chinese guns just north of the International settlement border, apparently at four low-flying Japanese bombers.

Just previously one hundred additional American marines had been landed from Admiral Harry Yarnell's yacht Isabel after a hurried trip from Tientsin. They swelled the United States land forces to 1,300 marines.

The marines were moved into place immediately behind the fortifications lining the northern border of the International settlement where the American forces guard the most hazardous section of the boundary.

Chinese troops clung tenaciously to their main lines on all fronts in the face of incessant and sustained attacks from the combined Japanese army, airforce and navy.

Scurry To Refuge
American residents of Amoy, South China port of Fukien province, were forced to scurry underground today into bomb proof dugouts for protection against a shattering two hour raid of Japanese warplanes and warships.

American lives were gravely endangered and the United States warship Asheville was caught in the bombardment. Several bombs fell only a short distance from the Asheville and forced her officers and crew to hurry below decks for refuge from the hail of shrapnel.

Bombs and shells from the Japanese planes and ships rained on the army headquarters, police headquarters, the airfield and the old fort near the compound of the American Socony Vacuum Oil Co.

Two of the bombs crashed near the Socony plants. Shrapnel showered the compound where many of the American employees remained at their posts. Miraculously the flying chunks of metal failed to strike either the personnel or the tanks of inflammable gasoline and oil.

The American colony previously had prepared bomb proof shelters against such a Japanese attack on this populous city.

Scores of shells were fired from Japanese cruisers and seven bombs were counted being dropped by two seaplanes.

From Swatow, 100 miles south of here in Kwangtung province, the Chinese Central News agency reported two Japanese bombers were shot down and one damaged in a raid on that port.

New Blow By Chinese
Chinese struck a new blow at the Japanese navy today by blocking the upper reaches of the Yangtze river with a barrier just below Silver Island, some 30 miles east of Nanking.

The barricade of obsolete steamers and Chinese junks loaded with sand and concrete effectively blocked the Japanese fleet from spreading its activities far up river from Shanghai. It meant that any considerable advance of the Japanese would place their land forces beyond the protecting range of their warships' guns.

The barrier also bottled up the United States fleet of river gunboats on the Yangtze and made more difficult the evacuation of 12,000 war beleaguered refugees at Hankow, 550 miles up the Yangtze from Shanghai, as well as other Americans in various parts of the valley.

Nearly 500 American officers and sailors are aboard the six gunboats marooned up the river. They have food supplies for six months, however, and Admiral Yarnell felt no concern for their safety.

The main Japanese attack was launched in force against Kiangwan, the strategic "back door" to Shanghai, six miles north of the city and midway to Woosung. A Japanese spokesman said that the Far East point, but his bombs fell in the thickly built industrial section of the river's left bank.

Three one-pounder shells plunged into the heart of the international settlement, seriously wounding three Chinese civilians and a British Sikh policeman in front of the American consulate-general. The shells apparently came from Chinese batteries north of the settlement. Guns there were firing on a low-flying Japanese bombing plane.

Shortly before that 100 American marines, brought to Shanghai from Tientsin on Admiral Harry E. Yarnell's yacht Isabel, landed and took their place in the four-mile line held by the marines along the northern edge of the settlement. This reinforcement swelled the marine strength in Shanghai to 1,300.

Chinese soldiers held stubbornly to their lines on the fronts north of Shanghai in spite of fierce bombardments. The main Japanese attack was launched at Kiangwan, 6 miles north of Shanghai and the "back door" to this city, but even the Japanese admitted they had made no progress.

REPORT SMALL GROUP PLANS ON CONTROL IN U. S.

Director of German American Bund Terms It "All a Joke"

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—The Daily Times said in a copyright article today that "in uniforms strangely suggestive of those worn by Adolf Hitler's Nazi storm troops, a relatively small but rapidly growing army is preparing for the American counterpart of 'Der Tag' when it plans to seize control of the United States."

The newspaper said the article resulted from an "exhaustive investigation of American Nazis" made by three reporters and investigators, James J. Metcalfe, his brother, and William A. Mueller. Mueller wrote the article.

"Under the name of Oberwinder," the article said "the Metcalfe brothers months ago built themselves up as Nazi sympathizers and were accepted as members of the German American Bund and its companion organization, the Deutscher Volksbund."

John Metcalfe established himself in the predominantly German Yorkville section of New York City and later acted as a propagandist for the German American Bund on a cross country tour.

"A month later John Metcalfe became a storm trooper in New York. His brother, James, was accepted as a member of the alien army operated by the Deutscher Volksbund in Chicago."

"The Times investigators found the German brand of racism spreading throughout the nation. Leaders of the movement say they will seize control of the United States, but not until the Communists' revolution starts."

"The organization is an integral part of the Hitler movement in Germany. Leaders are in frequent communication with Berlin."

Every method of modern propaganda is used to win converts to the cause.

"Chief tenet of the German American Bund is an intense hatred of Jews and all things Jewish. Other anti-Semitic organizations are lining up with the Bund in what leaders plan will be a general Fascist merger."

NAZI GERMANY TO FIGHT BITTERLY ON 'COMMUNISM'

Dr. Goebbels Hurls a Warning To Europe and Democracies

DENY PROMISE TO MAKE NO ATTACKS

Dr. Rosenberg Ridicules Liberal Principles of Democratic States

By The Associated Press.
NURNBERG, Sept. 9.—Nazi Germany's little propaganda minister, Paul Joseph Goebbels, declared before National Socialism's Congress today that a new Europe is being formed "for which we will fight to the last breath" against Communism.

Dr. Goebbels brought all his powers of invective into play—some of them against Americans and "deluded" democracies—a few hours after Germany had decided she could not sit down at a Mediterranean conference table with other powers so long as Soviet Russia, which has accused Fascist Italy of sinking her ships, would be there.

He warned Europe and the democracies that "Spain is the world's crossroads" and added: "What happens today in Spain may repeat itself tomorrow in any country."

Then he screamed that the establishment of "a Communist power" in western Europe "cannot be tolerated."

"Some leading American Democratic political personages," Goebbels shouted, sympathize with the Spanish government.

"If it is not secondarily and despicable," he cried, "to travel with this terrible world danger, then it is a case of crass stupidity to which one might apply the gospel prayer:—God, forgive them, for they know not what they do."

Take Rap at Moscow
He spoke then of the democracies which, he said, persisted in "deluding themselves" that the Spanish insurgency was a bid for power by reactionary generals.

That idea, he said, is the "devilish" work of Moscow, and "nations which close their eyes to this menace will some day suffer a terrible awakening."

Goebbels spared his listeners none of the bloody details of what he said went on in government Spain. He told a lurid story of murder, rape, the despoiling of churches and the killing of hostages.

"All this might have happened with us except for Adolf Hitler. The churches ought to be everlastingly grateful to us. But, instead, they insist on trespassing on the domains of the state."

Having assaulted Moscow, democracies and the churches, Goebbels then turned to his main battle, the Jews.

He said Bolshevism was merely a camouflage for "International Jewry."

And as a parting shot at the "Leftist" sympathies of "western liberalistic intellectualism," he cried:

"This is incomprehensible in its perverse aspect. One can only diagnose it as some sort of mental derangement."

Deny Attacks Be Spared
Earlier on the eve of a visit to the Nazi party congress by representatives of the world's three leading democracies, officials denied today that attacks on that form of government would be hushed to spare them embarrassment.

Democracy already had been linked with Bolshevism in a principal address. Dr. Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi ideological leader and recipient of one of Germany's new "Nobel prizes," called Bolshevism the "illegitimate child" of democracy and said democracy was doomed.

The forthcoming visit by representatives of the United States, France and Great Britain constituted the first acceptance of invitations to the party rally by the larger democratic countries.

Prentiss B. Gilbert, U. S. charge d'affaires at the Berlin embassy, and Andre Francois-Poncet and Sir Neville Meyrick Henderson, the French and British ambassadors, were scheduled to leave Berlin for Nurnberg tonight.

There were reports some time ago that assurances had been given to the United States, France and Britain that no anti-democratic attacks would be made if then diplomatic representatives came to Nurnberg. This was denied flatly today.

Dr. Rosenberg ridiculed the heads of democratic states for their defense of liberal principles and attempts to prevent the world from splitting into Fascist and democratic camps, adding:

WOMAN LOSES LIFE IN A HIGHWAY ACCIDENT

KANSAS CITY, Kas., Sept. 9.—(AP)—Mrs. Dean S. Merillat, 20, Kansas City, Kas., was killed and three others were injured early today in an automobile accident on Highway 73 south of Leavenworth. Their automobile overturned in a ditch. The party was returning from Leavenworth.

Injured were Dean S. Merillat and Mr. and Mrs. Rex Merillat, of Welborn. After treatment at a Leavenworth hospital they returned to their homes.

MORE THAN 1,900 CCC ENROLLEES TO BE RELEASED

Sixteen From Pettis County Among Ones For Other Employment

More than 1900 Missouri CCC enrollees now in the 41 junior companies of Missouri will, on or before September 30th next, be released for employment in Missouri on account of the rule recently made by Congress that men of 24 years of age or with two years experience in the CCC could not be re-enrolled. In addition to this, based on present incomplete reports, an additional 1000 to 1500 will be coming back from the 20 Missouri companies on the Pacific slope. There are men both now in Missouri and those from the Ninth Corps Area who will go into every county in the state and the total who will come back to Pettis county from Missouri alone is 16 while into this and nearly adjacent counties no less than 88 are listed to return.

Qualification cards listing the real abilities of these men who are going out, testified to by the camp officials, and furnishing a real index of capacity it is believed, will shortly be in the hands of the Missouri state employment service. Employers who desire men who have acquired high health and safety standards, who have learned the lessons of obedience and cooperation and who in the main have some splendid training along various technical lines can consult with the employment service and in many instances it is believed find boys who have through leadership acquired high degree of responsibility and initiative that will prove a very valuable asset to themselves and the employer.

Enrollees who will be discharged as a matter of course on September 30th can be discharged prior to that date to accept employment and men are allowed to go to employers for personal interviews when a "job opening" comes to their attention.

REV. WILLETT TO ACCEPT CALL GIVEN

Rev. Dwight H. Willett, for almost six years pastor of the First Baptist church, this city, tendered his resignation to the congregation Sunday to accept a pastorate at Erwin, Tenn. He will take over the new charge October 1.

Rev. Willett is a native of Kentucky and his wife of Tennessee, but he has never had charge of a church in the south. After leaving the seminary in Kentucky he came to Kansas City and was there eight years before coming to Sedalia.

W. F. BROOKS TO GO TO LONDON

W. F. Brooks, executive news editor of the Associated Press in New York City, in a telephone message to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Brooks, 414 West Sixteenth street, stated he had received a promotion and is being sent to London with the Associated Press.

Mr. Brooks, his wife and their 11-year-old son, W. F. Jr., plan to leave for London within the week, he stated.

Mr. Brooks began his newspaper career on the Sedalia Capital. From this city he went to Parsons, Kas., then to Kansas City where he was for a time employed on the Kansas City Star. He joined the Associated Press force in Kansas City and was soon sent to the eastern offices.

COMMISSIONER JEWELL MAYES ABLE TO BE OUT

Jewell Mayes, commissioner of agriculture, under which department the State Fair is operated, who has been away from his office in Jefferson City, the past several weeks recovering from an illness, spent part of Wednesday in his department at the state capitol.

Mr. Mayes is considerably improved, but employees of the department said he will probably not spend his full time in his office for several days.

PENDERGAST TO SUPPORT CLARK

By The Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Sept. 9.—T. J. Pendergast, Kansas City Democratic organization leader, announced today he will support Bennett Champ Clark for renomination and election as Missouri's senior senator next year.

"In my opinion Senator Clark has made a wonderful senator for the State of Missouri and will continue to make one," Pendergast said. "It is my belief the senator will be renominated and elected."

Pendergast's statement followed a visit of almost an hour by Senator Clark and Senator Harry S. Truman at the party leader's headquarters.

"I say now, not at Senator Clark's request, or because of any discussion on the part of any of us," Pendergast said, "that I will be for him for renomination and election. I had told him before that I would be for him."

Senator Clark said: "I appreciate the statement of Mr. Pendergast. I already knew what his attitude was. We did not discuss my candidacy for re-election. I simply dropped by for a friendly visit."

Senator Clark left this afternoon for Springfield where he will speak tonight at a barbecue sponsored by the veterans club of Greene county.

INSISTS CHILDREN USE SIDEWALKS

School children must stay on the sidewalks and keep out of streets going to and from school, Chief of Police John J. O'Brien said this morning, and parents are asked to cooperate with the officials of Sedalia in lecturing their children about safety.

Reports have been received at police headquarters of children insisting on walking in the streets and not giving way to the motoring public. Other reports are to the effect that children had been endeavoring to "thumb" their way to school and at times walking to the middle of the street to do so, while others have told the police several children have been seen "hopping" rides on rear bumpers of passenger cars and hanging on the rear of trucks.

For the past several years Sedalia has had a clear record of not having any serious accidents where a school child has been struck by a motor vehicle and Chief O'Brien said he desired to see it maintained.

Two persons on Wednesday failed to obey the school stop signs and this morning the city was $10 richer through both paying to the city $5 each.

J. L. Reine, arrested by Officer Herman Fischer, motorcycle policeman, failed to make a stop at one of the school signs and his $5 cash bond was ordered forfeited in police court by Judge Charles W. Bente.

Mrs. S. O. Galbraith failed to stop at a school stop sign and this morning Mr. Galbraith paid a $5 fine to Chief O'Brien after Judge Bente had passed the usual assessment on such violations. Mrs. Galbraith was arrested by Officer Fischer.

Sidney Peltzman arrested by Officer Ed Young on a charge of blocking a sidewalk was fined $5 by Magistrate Bente after a brief hearing. He paid $2 and was given a stay on $3.

GOVERNOR STARTS SIGNING UP ON $3,000,000 BONDS

Estimated Three Days Be Required For Task at St. Louis

BE SENT TO THE CAPITAL FOR SEAL

Secretary of State and Auditor Are Also Re- quired To Sign

By The Associated Press.
ST. LOUIS, Sept. 9.—Gov. Lloyd C. Stark arrived this afternoon from his interrupted eastern vacation to sign $3,000,000 in state building bonds for a syndicate of St. Louis banks and investment firms.

The bonds had been shipped to Stark in Woods Hole, Mass., for his signature, but Attorney-General Roy McKittick ruled the governor could not transact official business outside the state. He brought the securities back with him as baggage.

In a pasteboard box, about the size of a grocer's bread box, the bonds were carried by two red caps to an automobile waiting at the Twentieth street entrance to the union station. Five uniformed policemen and several detectives were on guard, although the bonds, without the governor's signature, are valueless.

I. A. Long, spokesman for the St. Louis group which purchased the bonds for a premium of $150,500 after they once had been sold privately to a Kansas City firm for $50,000 less, met the governor at the station. He accompanied Stark to a downtown bank, where the governor immediately began signing the bonds.

Uncertain on Time
Stark said he did not know how long it would take him to sign the bonds. It has been estimated three days would be required since there are 3,000 bonds of $1,000 denomination each.

They will require, in addition to the governor's signature, those of Secretary of State Dwight H. Brown and State Auditor Forrest Smith, as well as the imprint of the state's great seal.

Brown has refused the governor's request that he bring the seal to St. Louis, so the bonds must be sent to Jefferson City and then returned here for delivery to the purchasers by Tuesday.

Stark declined to say where he would stop while in the city. He said he planned to be busy signing the bonds and did not want to be disturbed by callers.

The governor hoped to be in New York Monday to break ground for the Missouri building at the World's Fair to be held there in 1939. From New York, he planned to go to Atlantic City, N. J., for the annual governor's conference, beginning Tuesday.

DR. SCHACHT MAY RESIGN POSITION

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—German business circles will sustain a hard jolt if it proves to be true that Dr. Hjalmar Schacht, minister of economics and president of the Reichsbank, finally has resigned.

The retirement of the "financial wizard," as he is known in his country, has been rumored so many times that one would think all sensation must have been squeezed out of the event. Schacht is such a vital part of the economic structure of the fatherland, however, that his withdrawal from public life is a matter of the deepest concern.

Schacht looks quite a bit like Adolf Hitler. That might be an asset or a dangerous thing, depending on whether the Nazi chieftain is fond of his own image or gets tired of seeing a second hand version of himself knocking about.

At any event, while the minister may look like Hitler, the former has made the mistake of not thinking like the big boss in some vital respects. Even Schacht's greatest admirers long have forecast the severance of his ties with the Nazi administration.

RELEASE PROMISED CONDEMNED FLIER

By The Associated Press.
BURGOS, Spain, Sept. 9.—Harold Dahl, 28-year-old Champaign, Ill., captive airman who is under sentence of death, told the Associated Press today that insurgent Generalissimo Francisco Franco has promised his release.

The promise was made to Dahl's bride of less than a year, who is now living at Cannes, France, Dahl was informed.

U. S. TROOPS STAY IN DANGER AREAS

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Secretary Hull indicated today that the United States does not intend to withdraw its troops or naval vessels from China so long as the present undeclared war between Japan and China continues.

He asserted at his press conference, in response to a direct question as to the American government's intentions in this respect, that this government's responsibility for protecting its nationals in disturbed areas lasts for the duration of the period of danger.

Hull, recalling the United States' efforts to evacuate its nationals from the danger zone in the Far East, said nevertheless its responsibility for protecting them is clear.

He added that the government was going forward with complete unanimity among all departments involved in performing that obligation.

The secretary said approximately 8,000 Americans still remain in China but that they are "filtering out" of the country by degrees.

JAPANESE FORCE OF 4,000 REPORTED BEING WIPED OUT

Chinese In a Deadly Am- bush In The Hills West of Peiping

By J. D. WHITE
PEIPING, Sept. 9.—(AP)—A detachment of 4,000 Japanese troops was reported today to have been wiped out by a deadly Chinese ambush in the rocky hills west of here. The Japanese line was said to have been thrust back five miles by the sudden Chinese onslaught.

Japanese commanders were obviously more and more worried over the fate of their operations in this area, where their advance has been held up a full month by dogged Chinese resistance and astute strategy.

Heavy reinforcements were flowing through Peiping to Liangiang, 30 miles to the south, and to the sorely menaced Japanese right flank in the western hills around Kentoukou, 25 miles to the west.

The steady stream of wounded Japanese returning from the front was almost equally heavy. Several thousands have been brought here in the last few days and last night a trainload of wounded was evacuated to Tangku, the port of Tientsin, where they will be sent back to Japan. Most of the injured were lying flat on the floors of cattle cars.

Reliable Chinese reports from the Mentoukuo front, where the whole Japanese operation is threatened by a wide Chinese flank attack, said that the 4,000 Japanese were drawn into a trap by retreating Chinese.

The Japanese pursued the retreat far into the maze of hills where the Chinese have prepared almost impregnable positions. Then, from their lairs on the hill tops, the Chinese swarmed down, riddling the Japanese with machine gun fire and forcing them to retreat five miles to the east.

ITALY NOT CONFER IN CONFERENCE ON 'ANTI-PIRACY'

Great Britain and France To Use Warships To Avert Attacks

BLOW TO HOPES TO SETTLE CRISIS

Germany Joins In Slap From Italy Taken at Soviets

By The Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 9.—French foreign officials said tonight they had received assurances that Britain and two other powers are willing to cooperate with France in a Mediterranean warship patrol under orders to "sink submarine attackers."

The foreign office hastily drafted plans for the naval patrol which it expected tomorrow's Mediterranean "piracy conference" to adopt.

Refusal of Germany and Italy to participate in the conference, to be held in Switzerland, prompted formulation of the plan.

Under the proposal an international fleet composed of British, French, Turkish and Greek vessels would sink any submarine of warship attacking neutral merchantmen.

British officials were known to be in agreement with the plan. Greek and Turkish assurance that their warships would cooperate was received today.

If Germany and Italy had decided to attend the conference, France and Britain would have asked for establishment of zones in which no submarines could operate.

LONDON, Sept. 9.—France and Great Britain answered German-Italian refusal to take part in a Mediterranean "anti-piracy" conference today with new determination to use their warships to prevent attacks on shipping.

Italy turned back an invitation to confer with 11 other powers on ways to stop Mediterranean piracy today by suggesting to England and France that the question be placed in the hands of the European non-intervention committee.

Germany acted in identical fashion.

Both Italian and German notes declared the Soviet accusation that Italian submarines had torpedoed two Soviet ships finally prompted their decision.

"Reservations should be made," the Italian note said, "with regard to the invitation of Soviet Russia to the conference."

Both the British and French insisted that the conference in Switzerland tomorrow would achieve definite results—despite refusal of Fascist powers to take part.

Even as the Fascist powers refused to parley, the French navy ministry ordered another destroyer division to be ready to rush to the Mediterranean. The order told commanders to be ready to sail on a moment's notice to reinforce the fleet already on patrol against submarine "piracy."

Eden In Flight To Paris
British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden flew to Paris to confer with French Foreign Minister Von Delbos on the course to be followed at the conference.

The Italo-German rejection was a blow to British and French hopes for a peaceful solution of the crisis which grew out of the Spanish civil war.

It was a slap at Soviet Russia. Moscow had accused Italy of torpedoing two Soviet freighters in the eastern Mediterranean. The charge threatened a diplomatic breach between Russia and Italy.

But, regardless of this, British officialdom declared:

"We want action and we mean to get it."

Both British and French said the Mediterranean piracy question was removed from the hands of the Spanish civil war non-intervention committee just to get this action.

The Italo-German proposal was described as "completely unacceptable" to France and Britain.

The British repeatedly have emphasized that the "piracy" issue is of world wide importance and outside the scope of the non-intervention committee.

With Italy and Germany absent from the Swiss conference, there was a suggestion the British might scrap a plan of "restricted zones" for submarines in the Mediterranean.

INTO DODO OBLIVION

Gum vendors and weighing machines, familiar sights at Katy passenger stations for half a century, have passed into oblivion when owners ordered them removed. Money makers during the early days of the century, they have failed to pay during recent years. Children used to find them part of the thrill of a train ride when father or mother would generously supply pennies to put in the slots to extract a stick of gum and chocolate or to see the big hand revolve to indicate their weight. The natural transition is that, not paying their way, these machines must pass into the realm of the Dodo bird.

Sedalia children, and the elders, too, have made the expression about the Dodo a byword of their conversational comparison with anything that has or will become extinct. But how many really know much about that famous bird? It really did exist, investigators assert. Its only known habitation was on the island of Mauritius, located in the southwestern portion of the Indian Ocean, discovered by the Portuguese in the beginning of the Sixteenth Century. The Dodo's name is derived from its simplicity. It was likened to a swan and had an affinity to the pigeon family. A grotesque bird, it was clumsy, flightless and defenseless. Last evidence was that it survived until July, 1681.

"SAFE" DRIVERS CAUSE ACCIDENTS

Ninety per cent of traffic accidents are caused by experienced, supposedly safe drivers, not by the inexperienced motorists, said Ralph Lee safety expert, at the recent Western Safety Conference. He cited a California survey which showed that 75 per cent of traffic fatalities in that state were chargeable to drivers with an average of eight years experience, who had never had a previous accident.

Finally, he said, before accidents can be prevented, the popular belief that the great bulk of them are caused by a relatively few congenitally reckless or incompetent persons, must be corrected. It is no longer true.

Over-estimating safety factors has turned many a driver who used to be careful, into a dangerous menace on the highways. Where the cars of a few years ago gave you a thrill at 40, the cars of today do 60 and 70 with ease. That makes for comfortable motoring when all goes well—but lack of vibration, and motor smoothness doesn't help when you careen head on into another car at a mile-a-minute clip. And the fact that today's highways are safe, from an engineering standpoint, when compared to the roads of yesterday, doesn't help when you experience a blow-out while you're hitting it up—or speed around a curve to find the road blocked and insufficient room to stop.

It is the average, experienced, "safe" driver who is causing today's accidents. This is the driver who must be reached by law enforcement agencies, and who must be appealed to by safety campaigns that are to get results.

Liquor consumption in the United States in 1936 was only 7 per cent less than in 1916, last pre-prohibition year.

WHY JAPAN IS INSOLENT

Japan occupied Chinese territory and declared it the state of Manchoukuo, elevating the former Chinese emperor to the puppet throne. Italy, intent on annexing the ancient Ethiopian empire, cited the case of Manchoukuo when the League of Nations branded the Fascist empire an outlaw among the powers. Italy knew, as Japan had known, that none of the Western nations would interfere because of the peril of another world war.

That explains the situation at Shanghai today. The Japanese are without justification for their invasion of China, without justification for their declaration of a blockade without a declaration of war. Great Britain is incensed over the serious wounding of its ambassador to China by Japanese bombs. Great Britain demands adequate reparation, but Japan seems to pay little attention.

The United States has announced that American vessels will be convoyed by naval craft and Japan is on notice that it cannot interfere with the movements of liners and tramps under the Star Spangled Banner.

Behind all this curtain of simulation is the peril of a war involving many nations. If the United States or Great Britain, or both of them, should clash with the Japanese, it is likely that Germany and Italy would come on the scene. There is a German-Japanese agreement. At this time Japan is somewhat fearful that the Soviet authority will come to the assistance of the Chinese.

Japan treats Western nations insolently for the reason that it is taking advantage of delicate international conditions in the Occident. Great Britain and France speak rather harshly in the Spanish situation, but neither has gone beyond words. Italy openly espouses the insurgent cause in Spain.

A lot of smoke was raised when the edict went out to stop gambling in Missouri. Public reaction was wholeheartedly favorable. Now that the dust has settled it seems that the public is to be wearied with a lot of technical interpretations of the executive order. It has certainly wilted the initial floral bouquets. In other words the state officials indicate that the original order was against slot machines only. What about it, governor?

More than $70,000,000 is invested in Spanish bull fighting. William R. Courtney will tell you this must be so. Patrons take the sport seriously. He witnessed one of the contests while on vacation in Mexico. It's not the bloody business that it used to be since the cruellest part of the game has been eliminated—the goring of unprotected horses after they fall.

This, Mr. Courtney explains, has been overcome by thoroughly padding the animals so that the bull's horns do not strike a vital spot.

DIVIDEND FROM FARM AND HOME

NEVADA, Mo., Sept. 8.—A dividend at the rate of 4 per cent annually and totaling $255,680.60 covering the six-month period ending August 31 has just been declared to its shareholders by the Farm and Home Savings and Loan Association of Missouri, according to an announcement made by George W. Wagner, president of the Association.

In addition to the dividend declared we were able, from the earnings of the period, to make substantial additions to our contingent fund and undivided profits," said Mr. Wagner, "and if collections are an evidence of business conditions, business must be good in the southwest, as our loans are confined to three states in that territory—Missouri, Oklahoma and Texas.

"At the end of August we had 5,884 loans and contracts in force. All but 289 of our borrowers made payments during the month; only 149 of our loans and contracts were delinquent as much as three monthly payments, and at the end of August, on loans and contracts totaling in excess of $12,600,000, the unpaid interest was only $6,113.28.

"The demand for loans on homes in the southwest continues good, for during the past six months the new home loans installed by this Association totaled 557, for $1,703,505.29, most of which was on new construction."

Only Known Case

Dr. J. E. Mitchell, county health physician, stated that this is the only case of infantile paralysis in the county so far as is known. He states that it is a disease that is not highly contagious, but is apparently infectious. There is nothing that can be done to prevent it, he said, except to spray the nose and throat, which has recently been recommended by prominent doctors. Spraying, he said, is better when done by physicians, for it should be far into the nose and throat. The solution recommended is one per cent zinc sulphate and one-half per cent sodium chloride. This spraying, it is believed, at least offers some value as a prophylactic.

ELECTRICITY KILLS CECIL W. CANNON

ELSBERRY, Mo., Sept. 8.—Cecil W. Cannon, brother of Congressman Clarence Cannon, was killed by electricity yesterday after a fire had been extinguished in a theater he managed.

After the fire, Cannon went into the smoke-filled theater to turn off an electric fan controlling a cooling system. Putting out the fire had left water on the floor. When Cannon touched the fan switch, he suffered a fatal shock.

HIRTH SAYS LEWIS' "METHODS MENACE"

COLUMBIA, Mo., Sept. 9.—William Hirth, president of the Missouri Farmers Association, asserted today that so far as farmers "and the C. I. O. are concerned, 'east is east and west is west, and never the twain shall meet.'"

Hirth's statement was in a letter declining an invitation from Luther M. Slink and secretary of the St. Louis Industrial Council, to address a Labor Day celebration in St. Louis.

Hirth said he believes "in the right of collective bargaining, assuming that the latter forces have not augmented their ranks last year."

"But," he added, "when Mr. (John L.) Lewis implies that our farmers and the C. I. O. should make common cause politically, I want to remind him that from the founding of the republic our farmers have had a deep regard for the rights of private property, and thus in this respect so far as they and the C. I. O. are concerned, 'east is east and west is west, and never the twain shall meet.'"

Hirth said he realized both workers and farmers are "entitled to a greater share of the wealth they help to create." But, he added, employees also have their rights.

"In my opinion," he said, "through its sit-down strikes the C. I. O. has flagrantly violated one of the most fundamental of the rights of private property."

In the use of such methods he said, "Lewis has become a menace not only to American industry at a critical time in our country's history, but even more so to the nation's workers who should in their own behalf and that of their children in the days to come be deeply concerned in upholding law and order."

OFFERS TEN-POINT PROGRAM ON THE FARM PROBLEM

L. J. Taber, Grange Master Asks Return of "American Market"

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 8.—Return of the American market, as a means of insuring "enduring prosperity" to the nation's farmers was urged today by L. J. Taber, master of the National Grange.

The Columbus, O., agricultural leader, speaking at the New York State Fair, presented in a 10-point "fighting program" designed to help solve the farm problem.

Pointing to an increase "of $400,000,000 in the last 12 months in farm produce imports," Taber asserted that farm exports had decreased during the same period and asked:

"Give our farmers the American market for those commodities which can be efficiently produced."

Points on Taber's program were: 1—Use a larger proportion of tariff revenue in finding new uses for farm products, in finding new markets for farm crops, and equalizing market conditions and prices.

2—Place emphasis on the family-sized farm. Keep farm costs and supplies, including transportation, interest and taxation within reason.

3—Develop cooperative marketing and collective bargaining so that the farmer can have a fair voice in determining the price of his products.

4—Develop national unity, and oppose sectionalism and class warfare.

5—Ample support for education, extension, research and youth activities.

6—Return to the farmer the American market "for those commodities which can be efficiently produced."

7—Emphasize rural organization and self-help agencies.

8—Continuation of the soil conservation program "but place it more directly under farmer control."

9—Develop a long term farm program, emphasizing "sound land use," and retire marginal land by increasing forestry.

10—Use the principals of the ever-normal granary and crop insurance.

Taber in conclusion challenged "the farmers everywhere to take a renewed interest in their own affairs."
